Prolific Variety

Vancouver's 19-pound entry of Prolife rye won the championship yesterday for its uniformity of size, plumpness, cleanliness, and fine color—green-grey shade.

The new champion didn't come to the Royal Winter Fair with his grain, but stayed at his farm south-east of Edmonton.

The other world championships awarded this week went to John Alton, Red Deer, Alta., in wheat; Louis Robbins of Laura, Sask., in barley; John Boulton of Ales, Alta., in oats; Arthur B. Palmer of Calgary, in potatoes.

CALPARI HORSE WINNER

Judges of heavy horses handed out grand championships to exhibitors of Belgians and Percherons at the Royal Winter Fair.

Camrose Farmer Stays At Home

CAMROSE, Nov. 20.—(CP)—The world's best rye came from the world, R. Wennerstrom of Camrose, who is very happy about my achievement.

Wennerstrom's entry of Prolife rye won the championship at the Royal Winter Fair. The 29-year-old farmer, residing at Toronto for the first time, did not make the trip east but exhibited his grain at Camrose.

Wennerstrom was elated when informed that his entry was judged top and "now I am sure to win a number of years on his own."

The champion owns a 10-acre farm four miles north of Camrose and has a 14-acre field of the prize spring rye. He had farmed for a number of years on his own.

Wennerstrom's wife and daughter are seated the same as I am. We are all quite happy about the whole thing."

MAN KICKED BY DEAD DEER

OSHAWA, Ont. Nov. 20.—(CP)—Robert Foster is going to have a lot of trouble persuading people to believe his story on how he received his black eye. He says he was kicked by a dead deer. Storm Hits West States

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 20.—(AP)—Parties in the western states today were cutting through deep snowdrifts to rescue stranded travellers and livestock.

Winter's first snow across eastern Colorado, southwestern Nebraska and western Kansas ridged the land with drifts from three to 10 feet deep. Trains, trucks and motor cars were stalled. Telephone and power lines were down, and many communities isolated.

One death was reported. A 15-year-old girl died at Hutchinson, Kan., of diabetes when drifts blocked efforts to get her to a hospital.

Lack of severe cold lessened the hardship.

Trains on the Santa Fe, Union Pacific and other railroads were moving slowly today as snowplows rained the tracks clear. Some trains were delayed as much as 20 hours.

Soldiers in Kansas, using military food, were hauling stranded motorists to shelter.

Two airline pilots, flying separate routes from Kansas City to Denver last yesterday, reported seeing over 200 automobiles stalled near the Kansas-Colorado border. They saw no distress signals, however.

Man Burns to Death In Oil Derrick Blaze

An oil well worker was burned to death shortly before noon today when a flash fire swept the derrick floor of the Hanna Petroleum No. 3 well, about a mile west of Hanna and 160 miles southeast of Edmonton.

Dead is Lyman Wybratt, 27, of Hanna, who fell to his death near the top of the well derrick. Fellow workers were unable to reach him in time to save his life.

Company officials said a section of derrick stem pipe was being withdrawn from the well when the fire occurred. It is believed a spark ignited a quantity of natural gas entering around the well-head.

The well was at the 2,800-foot level when the accident occurred. The Hanna is under contract to under, under direction of town councillor Joseph Winkler, assisted in drilling the fire under contract.

If judgment was given 900 shareholders of CIO Sands Limited will sustain complete loss of their investment and the company is now practically certain a process has been started to liquidate the company, the government's position would not be jeopardized as the plant would be closed down during the liquidation.

CITES GENE TUNNEY

He added that negotiations providing for the return of the plant, the company and Gene Tunney, New York, had resulted in a tentative agreement between the government, the parties, and Mr. Tunney was submitting details of this agreement to financial officials in the United States for approval.

Mr. White said this matter was of so great importance to and affected so many people a further adjournment should be granted.

Mr. McKenna submitted that not one cent had been paid by the company under the nil order despite repeated assurance that negotiations were under-way to obtain cash.

MONEY FROM PROVINCE

Provincial funds spent on erection and operation of the plant at Bitumont had been from the general revenue of the province. Not a dollar of company money had been spent on the project, Mr. McKenna stated.

VARSTY SEEMS PUBLICITY MAN

Students' Union of the University of Alberta is going to have its own public relations officer to acquire the province more fully with student activities.

Students' Council, governing body of the Union, this week called for applications from the student body for the position of Varsty Publicity Officer.

The campus PRBO will head various committees which will be appointed later this session to be responsible for the publicity work of the University.

First step in this work was begun at the beginning of the present session, with the sending of all issues of The Gazette, student newspaper, to all high schools in the province.

Other student know-your-University publicity methods will include: News coverage in Alberta's weekly newspapers; student attendance at conventions of teachers, municipalities and weekly newspapers; and the largest of the present University calendar from a purely financial publication to a magazine-style picture booklet; photos and movies of University activities to be distributed to Alberta schools; distribution of recordings by the Mixed Chorus to the schools.

Also planned are projects to be known by the general public such as an travelling science exhibit, and a Know-Your-University exhibit, to acquaint Albertans with the academic work which the students pursue.

Above plans were included in a report made to Council by a two-man committee of Jack Starnitz, Students' Union secretary, and Jack Parry, law faculty representative on Council.

On Sept. 30 this year total of funded and unfunded debt of the province was $127,004,000 as compared to $140,000,000 a year before.

This result was achieved by Dominion government cancellation of treasury bills owed the senior government by the province.

The federal government cancelled $8,031,000 worth of treasury bills in payment to the province for control of Alberta's natural resources from 1905 to 1920. The amount was set up by a Royal Commission set up to investigate the problem.

The Dominion cancelled 50 per cent of the treasury bill indebtedness assumed by Alberta during the depression days for unemployment and agricultural relief in amounts of $3,597,000.

Payment of Alberta bonds of $4,000,000 also contributed to the drop in funded debt.

There was an increase in unfunded debt made up largely of savings certificates and pension funds of $99,000, most of which is made up of increased employee contributions to the pension funds.

Addressing the general meeting of the St. Joseph's Association, Branch No. 24 of the Canadian Legion in the Memorial Hall at 230 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 21, will be Capt. J. Smith of the PPCLI.

McGowan's Association will hear Dr. H. B. Mayor, political economy professor, discuss "The Communist Manifesto—One Hundred Years After" at the group's regular meeting Wednesday.

Highway Spending Down This Year

Alberta's department of public works spent $769,000 less on highway and road construction between March 31 and Sept. 30, 1948 than it did a year ago.

An interim financial statement covering the period was issued today by C. K. Huckleval, provincial auditor and shows expenditures on road and bridge work to be $4,638,000 as compared to $5,205,000 a year ago.

Other student know-your-University publicity methods will include: News coverage in Alberta's weekly newspapers; student attendance at conventions of teachers, municipalities and weekly newspapers; and the largest of the present University calendar from a purely financial publication to a magazine-style picture booklet; photos and movies of University activities to be distributed to Alberta schools; distribution of recordings by the Mixed Chorus to the schools.

Also planned are projects to be known by the general public such as an travelling science exhibit, and a Know-Your-University exhibit, to acquaint Albertans with the academic work which the students pursue.

Above plans were included in a report made to Council by a two-man committee of Jack Starnitz, Students' Union secretary, and Jack Parry, law faculty representative on Council.

City Medical Officer Endorses Seal Campaign

Alberta's current Christmas Seal campaign was boosted today by Dr. G. M. Little, city medical health officer, who issued a statement endorsing the drive.

"Christmas Seals have pioneered and financed a major part of Alberta's fight against tuberculosis," the health officer said.

"I sincerely hope this year's campaign will be successful, so that the Alberta Tuberculosis Association will be able to carry on its invaluable services to the people of Alberta," he added.

Support of the campaign will be asked for by Edmonton church ministers Sunday.

Some of the Sunday services in almost every Alberta church will be devoted to the merits of the seal campaign.

Edmonton clergymen endorsing the campaign include: Rev. Dr. E. Thompson, president of the Alberta conference, United Church of Canada; Brig. Rufus Hayman, divisional commander of the Salvation Army; Most Rev. J. R. Macdonald, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Edmonton; and Rev. W. R. Barfoot, Anglican bishop of Edmonton.

Seal sale objective in Edmonton and Northern Alberta this year is $25,000.

Funds are used for community chest, cancer surveys, vocational training and rehabilitation of TB patients, health education and prevention services.

Local chairman of the Kinmen TB Seal Sale committee is J. C. Contributions, allowable as income tax deductions, should be sent to the Christmas Seal Office, Teintzman Hall, Edmonton.

Discriminatory Rates

Not even the most bigoted proponent of the status quo in freight rates could fail to recognize the criminal absurdity in the present rate on fruit from the Okanagan to Edmonton.

This rate puts Edmonton fruit dealers at a ridiculous disadvantage compared to Calgary dealers.

Up until April 11, 1948, Edmonton had a carlot apple rate from the Okanagan of 86 cents. From April 11 to September 21, the rate was $1.04. On September 21, it was advanced to $1.15.

Calgary still has the 86-cent rate.

The disparity is just as pronounced in other fruits.

Pears travel from the Okanagan to Edmonton at $1.15 but to Calgary for 86 cents. Stone fruits move to Edmonton for $1.71, to Calgary for $1.26. Vegetables are shipped to Edmonton at a cost of 68 cents, to Calgary for 51 cents.

The rank injustice of this situation is emphasized by the fact that the Canadian National Railways will deliver apples or pears from the Okanagan to Calgary via Edmonton for 98 cents. But if they are shipped in Edmonton, the rate, for the shorter haul, is $1.15.

Under this discrimination, Calgary wholesalers could almost ship into Edmonton and compete favorably with Edmonton wholesalers.

The rate structure, as it affects fruit shipped from the Okanagan to Edmonton, imposes an unwarranted hardship upon Edmonton business men and Edmonton consumers.

It is this sort of discrimination that calls most loudly for a complete overhaul of every aspect of the freight rate schedules.

Certainly one of the primary requisites of a freight rate structure is that it should move goods from one point to another with complete fairness as between one community and another.

To set up merchandising advantages in one city and merchandising handicaps in another is surely contrary to the spirit of confederation and opposed to the principles upon which this country was unified.

Discrimination in freight rates must be completely removed before the transportation system in Canada can be placed upon a healthy basis.

Ireland's Unity a Lost Dream

The parliament of Eire, in giving Prime Minister Costello leave to introduce a bill repealing the external relations act has taken the first step towards breaking the final link with the British Commonwealth.

And with the breaking of that link the dream of a united Ireland appears to be completely dissipated.

Prime Minister Costello's bill, which will be debated on November 24, establishes Eire as a republic and translates from the King to the president the right to control Eire's external relations.

This means that, after the passage of the bill, Eire's diplomatic and foreign missions will no longer be accredited to the King but to the president of Eire.

It is one of those anomalies of international politics that while the government of Eire has moved steadily away from the Commonwealth connection, the people of Eire maintain a highly sympathetic relationship to Commonwealth affairs.

All the news about the birth of the Princess Elizabeth's son, for instance, was followed as closely in Dublin as in London.

And during the war, the enlistment of the young men of Eire in British armed forces was exceedingly heavy although the Eirean government frowned on the practice and would not permit news of South Ireland casualties to appear in Dublin newspapers.

South Ireland naval men who died at sea in British ships were described as victims of a "boating accident."

It would be too much to say that Eire sympathies and the Eire constitution would ever clash. But the governmental passion for complete independence does not appear to be very happily supported by the entire public will.

'There Is No Power But of God'

Writing to the Romans, St. Paul uses this significant phrase:

"For there is no power but of God."

These words have been employed upon occasion to compel obedience of the devout by the apostle and his disciples.

But while the apostle undoubtedly had in mind the submission of all good Christians to properly constituted authority, the deeper significance of the phrase is to be found in the relationship between divine authority and purely human authority.

It will be noted in a study history that any man can be trusted with any amount of power so long as he is fully aware that the power does not arise within himself but has been given to him by God.

Trouble comes when political or military power are considered as those which wield the peculiar personal attributes of those who wield them.

When power is conceived as arising within him who exercises it, it brings nothing but disorder and destruction both to the wielder and to those against whom it is wielded.

The same thing is true even of powers of the intellect.

High intelligence can be both destructive and self-destructive unless it is employed in accordance to God's will.

For the thing to remember is that all power is the gift of God.

Power is not for the aggrandizement of men, but for the worship of God.

ODDS AND ENDS

By Harold L. Weir

Juvenile Delinquency, A Major Social Problem

Dr. A. R. Schragg of the Provincial Mental Hygiene Clinic, has been telling Edmonton audience "bad" boys are the product of psychological maladjustment.

He says that guidance clinics are able to detect and straighten out these unhealthy reactions to environment.

These unhealthy reactions, he declares, are shown by boys in one of two ways: first, by juvenile delinquency, and second, by juvenile delinquency.

Now anyone with the merest bowing acquaintance with psychology will admit to the truth of what Dr. Schragg says.

And yet if society relied entirely upon guidance clinics and other psychological machinery to deal with juvenile delinquency and the problem of the "bad" child would still be far from solved.

The truth is that there are many factors involved in juvenile delinquency that the "bad" child psychology cannot touch at all.

The most prominent of these factors is that the "bad" child is probably not "bad" at all, within the psychological meaning of the word.

Realist Children

I was talking the other day with a young friend of mine who is active in one of the city's youth organizations.

He was talking about the proposition that youth organizations are to deal with delinquent or trouble children because youth has the confidence of youth and will follow youth in doing interesting and useful things.

I asked this young chap what he thought of the view that boys who are wont to embark upon career of window smashing and other acts of vandalism.

He hesitated and flushed a little.

"Well," he admitted, "I used to think that myself."

"And you said," he explained, "when kids haven't got a thing to do, they just naturally get into trouble."

"A bunch of us would run into other boys and other boys were looking for excitement. And then somebody would suggest putting a street lamp, so we would do street lamps with air rifles and heard tools through windows of vacant houses and schools."

"I wasn't very much fun. But it was something to do."

Now there is the typical delinquent.

Boys Are Not Bad

Now by no stretch of the imagination could this young fellow be called a "bad" child.

He possessed and possesses an unusual amount of energy.

His mind and body are restless.

And so far from wanting anything to do, he committed those acts of destruction which are associated with rowdy and delinquent children.

As soon as he got tied up with a street lamp, he didn't break any more light bulbs or windows because the idea of it seemed foolish to him. He was less attracted to the pastimes the club had to offer.

My point is that this young chap was "delinquent" not because of any psychological

Some cynic once said that a political party platform is what the politicians use to get in on a job. At worst, only half true. Great parties have to deliver much of what they promise.

As a result of the Truman victory in the U.S. we may expect the following:

1. Repeat of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, or its drastic modification.

2. A large-scale housing construction program.

3. A more positive policy for settlement of the outstanding issues with Soviet Russia.

The Taft-Hartley Act has already been revised in some respects. Among other things it took it to make it unlawful for union publications to express any political opinion. It constitutionally tried to prevent trade unions from spending money for political purposes.

In my opinion, the Supreme Court would also certainly rule on the clause which compelled all unions to swear that their officers were non-Communists or else face serious discipline.

There is legal democratic machinery whereby the Communist Party could be outlawed.

But so long as the Communist Party is a legal party in the United States, no special law of Congress may take away any general right that the constitution guarantees.

Illegal

Legality

Understandably, the Communists are unpopular these days in the U.S. But many reasons are given for this, including even John L. Lewis, have been facing enough to receive the merest nod of assent in legislation.

For if a Republican majority in Congress may decide in 1947 that no Communist may hold a trade union, notwithstanding the fact that the Constitution says any trade union may be a Communist.

It is not for nothing that a radical majority may turn the tables.

Weather Changed By Sun Bursts

Toronto Telegram

Atmospheric showers and outbreaks of invisible ultraviolet light from the sun may be significant factors in weather.

Both, in some way, appear to be associated with changes in atmospheric pressure, wind, and level, which in turn is one of the major determinants of the earth's meteorological pattern.

Thirty-three showers and outbreaks have received little attention as possible aids in forecasting weather, but they should be subject to observation.

This thesis is presented by Dr. H. and Dr. D. of Washington, in a bulletin which has been accepted by the Smithsonian Institution.

The atmosphere is known to be a complex medium, and it has been known for some time that it is made up of particles—protons, neutrons, electrons and positrons of various kinds.

These particles are known as cosmic rays, and they are known to be associated with the high altitude and mid-level clouds, probably brought about by various changes in the atmosphere.

These changes are known as solar flares, and they are known to be associated with the high altitude and mid-level clouds, probably brought about by various changes in the atmosphere.

The Chinese government's announcement of a sweeping victory over the Communist rebels in the crucial battle of the Yellow River, gateway to the capital of Nanking, has been seized upon in central China as giving hope that the terrible Red offensive has been stopped.

Certainly the report is encouraging, but we shall do well to keep our heads down and not jumping to conclusions. We must wait to see what the great battle has been going on for some 10 days.

The time has arrived when the under far more favorable circumstances, the attacking Chinese Communists may be forced to pause to bring up their equipment and to rest.

Thus the halt in the attack does not mean that the Reds are knocked out. Their assault may be resumed at a short's breath.

The casualties have been big on both sides. A Nanking spokesman has estimated the government forces at 60,000 men. The Reds numbered at 130,000.

Assuming that the estimate of Communist strength is correct, how are the rebels going to find the means to replace their great number of men? I was given an interesting answer to this problem from Dr. Pen. Henshaw, a Canadian who has been in New York on his way from Paris to Nanking.

Dr. Henshaw said that a lot of people in the Western world wonder why the Chinese Communists are able to sustain heavy losses and still keep pouring fresh armies into the battle.

He said that the answer lies in the fighting men needed. Some of these folks take this as a means of living.

He said that the Chinese Communists are not so much fighting men as they are a means of living.

Churchill Stand On Overlord Told

Eisenhower Tells Reasons For Opposing Views

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published Nov. 22, 1947, by Doubleday and Company. Copyrighted by Doubleday and Company. The serialization is in 30 chapters, which will appear daily in The Bulletin.—EDITOR.

CHAPTER XI

While the summer and fall fighting was in full swing we received word that the President and the Prime Minister and their staffs were preparing to hold another joint meeting, this time near Cairo, Egypt was not then within the limits of our theatre, but aside from insuring safe passages through our area we were called upon to provide secure places for preliminary meetings and for the accommodation of individuals.

Mr. Churchill, as always, was entertaining and interesting. I have never met any one else capable of keeping a dinner gathering on his toes. His comments on events and personalities were pointed and pungent, often most amusing. He looked forward with great enthusiasm to his meeting with the President, from whom, he said, he always drew inspiration for tackling the problems of war and of the later peace.

DOUBTFUL OF OVERLORD

He dwelt at length on one of his favorite subjects—the importance of smashing Germany through the "soft underbelly." He pointed out the tempo of our Italian attack and extending its scope to include much of the northern shore of the Mediterranean. He seemed always to see great and decisive positions in the Mediterranean, while the project of invasion across the English Channel left him cold. However, I heard him say, in speaking of Overlord prospects, "We must take care that the tides do not run red with the blood of American and British youth, or the beaches be choked with their bodies."

I could not escape a feeling that Mr. Churchill's views were unconsciously colored by two considerations that lay outside the scope of the immediate military problem. I had nothing tangible to justify my feeling—I know, though, that I was not alone in wondering occasionally whether the considerations had some weight with him.

GALLIPOOLI MEMORIES

The first of them was his concern as a political leader for the future of the Balkans. For this concern I had great sympathy, but as a soldier I was particularly careful to exclude such considerations from my own recommendations.

The other was an inner compulsion to vindicate his strategic concepts of World War I. In which he had been the principal exponent of the Gallipoli campaign. Many professionals agreed that the Gallipoli affair had failed because of bungling in execution rather than through mistaken calculations of its possibilities. It sometimes seemed that the Prime Minister was determined in the second war to gain public acceptance of this point of view.

I was called upon shortly to go meet the President, who was arriving by ship at Oran. At Oran we transferred Mr. Roosevelt to a plane and took him to a villa on the outskirts in Tunisia, where his headquarters was locally known as the "White House." At that time the President seemed in good health and was optimistic and confident. He stayed over an extra day in Tunisia in order to visit battlefields of that area.

OVERLORD LEADER

To give General Marshall and Admiral King some release from the restrictions that inevitably accompany travel with a Presidential party I invited the two of them to stay at my little cottage in Carthage. Both were surprisingly delighted to have the opportunity for a quiet evening, and both seemed to me to be in splendid health and spirits. In a before-dinner conversation Admiral King brought up the subject of future command of Overlord.

He said that in early discussions between the President and the Prime Minister it had apparently been agreed that a British officer would be named to the post.

LEGION OF MERIT medal is awarded to one of America's best-loved military men as President Roosevelt decorates General Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander-in-chief in the North African theatre. The chief executive decorated "Duke" en route to the history-making conferences at Cairo and Teheran.

and vivid and bitter memories of Paschendale and Vim Ridge. None of us wanted any repetition of those experiences.

Moreover, the Dieppe raid of the summer of 1942 did not, promise any easy conquest of the beaches themselves. That raid, carried out by a strong force of Canadians, had resulted in a high percentage of losses. From it we learned a number of lessons that we later applied to our advantage, but the price paid by the Canadians still rankled.

On the second day the President and his party departed for Cairo, leaving personal orders with me to join the conference in that city within two or three days. Accompanied by my principal command, except for Alexander, who was ill, we proceeded to Cairo to present our views concerning the forces in the Mediterranean.

So far as there was discernible any difference between the professional views of the British and American groups it appeared to me and to my associates at the Cairo Conference that the British still favored a vigorous and all-out amphibious operation in the Mediterranean campaign even, if necessary, at the expense of additional delay in launching Overlord; while the Americans declined to approve anything that would detract from the strength of the attack to be delivered across the Channel early in the following summer.

The Prime Minister and some of his chief military advisers still looked upon the Overlord plan with scarcely concealed misgivings; their attitude seemed to be that we could avoid the additional and grave risks implicit in a new amphibious operation by merely intensifying the Mediterranean campaign. The serious and serious nature of the air, ground, and naval resources available. They implied that by pushing the Italian campaign, invading Yugoslavia, capturing Crete, the Dodecanese, and Greece, we would deal the German position a severe blow without encountering the admitted dangers of the full-out effort against northwest Europe.

My own staff, including my British advisers, and I continued to support the conclusions reached a year and a half previously that only the cross-Channel attack would our full strength be concentrated and decisive results achieved.

DIEPPE IS RECALLED
Because, later, the landing in Normandy was successfully accomplished without abnormal loss, it is easy to ignore the very real risks and dangers implicit in the plan. Had we encountered there a disastrous reverse, those who now criticize the concern with which some looked forward in the prospect would have been stoutest in condemning the leaders who insisted upon the validity of the plan. One thing that opponents feared was a repetition of the French warfare of World War I. The British a number of persons, among them some Americans, were moved to consider the wisdom of avoiding the risks of a Channel crossing and, instead, to push the Italian and other campaigns in the Mediterranean to the limit of Allied ability.

However, I never at any time heard Mr. Churchill urge or suggest complete abandonment of the Overlord plan. His conviction, so far as I could interpret it, was that at some time in the indefinite future the Allies would have to cross the Channel. But he seemed to believe that our attack should be planned so that the day came when the enemy would be forced to withdraw most of his troops from northwest Europe, at which time the Allies could go in easily and safely.

TELLS OWN FEELINGS

My own recommendation, then, as always, was that no operation should be undertaken in the Mediterranean except as a directly supporting move for the Channel attack and that our planned redeployment to England should proceed with all possible speed. Obviously, a sufficient strength had to be kept in the Mediterranean to hold what we had already gained and to force the Nazis to maintain a large force in that area.

This was the program adopted by the Cairo Conference, and our shipment of troops and equipment to England continued without change. The psychological value of the capture of Rome, however, emboldened us, particularly by the Prime Minister.

In December, 1942, General Eisenhower flew to Tunis from Italy to see President Roosevelt, who was on his way home from the Cairo conference, and was told for the first time that he was to command "Overlord," the great PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Thirsty Philadelphians were reassured yesterday by the will of Andrew J. There was a stipulation that Hand's name be inscribed on each.

Cross-Channel Invasion of Europe
How this decision was reached is described in the twelfth installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published in this newspaper tomorrow. General Eisenhower also describes the strategy of the Anglo landing in Italy and Prime Minister Churchill's determination to carry it out in spite of warnings that it was a risky affair.

Horse-Whipping Brings Sentence To London Man

MAIDSTONE, Kent, Eng., Nov. 20.—(UPI)—Horace Caro, wealthy London business man, was sentenced yesterday to serve three days in jail for horse-whipping a young former Air Force officer who had been intimate with Caro's movie actress daughter.

Caro was found guilty of causing "gross bodily harm" to Kenneth Coates, whom he took in his car to an unused quarry last July and horse-whipped while threatening him with a pistol. Coates admitted he had visited Jacqueline Caro, 24, a movie bit player, while her father was in the United States on a business trip. "I was ashamed," Coates told the jury, "but I don't think I deserved to be punished such as whipping and waving a gun at me while I went everywhere. It creased my face, back, shoulders and legs. It was very painful indeed."

Caro, bluntly admitting the whipping, said he told Coates to cover his face and turn his back. Caro also was ordered to pay 10 pounds ($200) court costs.

Mystery Thriller Film at Capitol

'Sorry, Wrong Number' Stars
Barbara Stanwyck, Lancaster

A new kind of spine-tingling film thriller—a deep freeze chiller, replete with menace—in which a woman overhears a telephone conversation plotting her murder and is powerless to save herself, opens at the Capitol theatre Monday.

It's Paramount's version of the famous radio play "Sorry, Wrong Number," co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and Burt Lancaster, supported by Ann Richards, Wendell Corey and Harold Vermilyea.

A shriek-by-shriek picture of the encroachment of murder, "Sorry, Wrong Number," compels its audience to shrink in common horror with a woman who early in the story overhears her death being plotted and, in an hour and a half of helpless horrorification, awaits her end.

PUBLIC LIKES IT
Enlarged and transposed to the screen from Lucille Fletcher's great radio play, which was re-broadcast seven times by popular demand, the film contains three times as many shudders as the half hour theatre thriller.

Miss Fletcher also wrote the screen play and the magic of the movie camera offered her a broad vista in which to let her fertile imagination expand. And expand it did, into many spine-tingling situations.

Barbara Stanwyck turns in the performance of her career as the beleaguered, neurotic woman with means of communication with the outside world is by telephone. For her, the phone becomes an instrument of slow death from the moment she accidentally overhears two men plotting the murder of an un-known woman.

Her terror is intensified with

BAN ON BOOK IN WASHINGTON IS REFUSED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—(AP)—The United States attorney's office refused to ban a book in Washington of a book titled "The Alcoholic Woman" which was described last week as being obscene and pornographic.

J. Warren Wilson, assistant United States attorney, said a study of the book showed it is a legitimate scientific text dealing with a field of psychiatry. Dr. William Kayser, chief psychiatrist of St. Elizabeth's hospital and an authority of criminal psychology, is the author of the book. It relates case histories of three women, their sex experiences and alcoholic addictions. The book was written for distribution among physicians and social workers.

Inside Hollywood

By Bob Thomas
HOLLYWOOD.—(AP)—Tired young stars can take a lesson from Frank Morgan. He is celebrating his 35th year as a film actor by working in two pictures at once.

Reviewing his service before the cameras, the actor gloomed: "It has been a long and profitable engagement."

Now playing a gambling olderster in "The Great Sinner" and a nuttish baseball trainer (sans mustache) in "The Stratton Story," Morgan disclosed that he has always loved with his age.

HAD TO RUN
"I started out as a character actor," he said, "because I didn't like to run. When I began acting in my 20s, the juvenile never walked on stage. He had to run in with a crowd's request in his hand and he would go the same way, running and waving."

"Well, I wanted to walk, so I greased my hair and became a character actor."

"When he came to Hollywood in 1922, he had made extensive films in the early days, Morgan almost lost his resolve to remain a character actor."

A LONG STORY
"It came out to star in 'Topaz.' It's a long story, but I finally didn't do the part. John Barry more did. It might have changed."

Western Powers Disagree on Ruhr

Britain And U.S. Turn Down French Pleas On Germany

PARIS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—Britain and the United States were reported today to have turned down French pleas against rebuilding Germany's industrial power.

Observers said the 10-week-old government of Premier Henri Queux may not survive mounting parliamentary opposition to the British-American policy which conflicts with the French people's traditional desire to keep Germany weak.

CAN BE BEATEN

It is generally accepted here that the government will fail over the Ruhr issue if the Communists unite with the De Gaulle in asking complete rejection of the British-American attitude.

After talks with foreign minister Robert Schuman, state secretary Marshall of the United States and state minister Hector McNeil of Britain were reportedly to have turned down a French plea to revise the German policies.

Responsible British and American officials however said they are promised to strengthen every safeguard against possible renewed German aggression.

LIST OF OBJECTIONS

The French government is expected to submit a memorandum this week regarding their objections to the Ruhr steel and coal industries to the Germans.

R.H.A. DESIGN OF THE MONTH—Here is a plan with features that make it desirable and practical for location on a rural or suburban lot when the owner has planned to have a garden and wants direct access to the basement and also the bathroom without entering other rooms within the house. The kitchen is located at the front. A serving counter and cabinets from the end of the dining space in the living-dining room, making it possible to set the dining table and remove the dishes without leaving the kitchen. The first floor contains two bedrooms and a bath with adequate closet space. The second floor may be finished at a later date to include two additional bedrooms.

The roof construction is simple and the style is so arranged that no dormer is required. Designed by M. G. Dixon, B.Arch., M.R.A.I.C., Ottawa, the area of the house for estimating purposes is 1,100 square feet, including second floor. The exterior dimensions are 30 feet by 34 feet and the minimum required lot width is 42 feet without driveway.

Complete construction drawings for this design, known as Plan No. 47-4, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost. The drawings show frame construction but the dimensions are so arranged that the house may be built in veneer or solid masonry.

British Columbia Formed 90 Years Ago This Week

By Albert Hunter
VANCOUVER, Nov. 20.—(CP)—On a dark, wet day, exactly 90 years ago this week a gun salute boomed from the bastion at Fort Langley on the Fraser river and the Union Jack was hoisted over the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

British law had replaced the rule of the fur trade and British Columbia came into being as a crown colony.

READS COMMISSION
Acting as governor of Vancouver Island, proclaimed a crown colony 90 years earlier, Sir James Douglas read the royal proclamation of Queen Victoria. It appointed him governor of the unorganized mainland territory, previously known as New Caledonia.

(R.C. and Vancouver Island were united into one province in 1860 and entered Confederation five years later.)

The proclamation ceremony, however, had a significance even greater than the organization of a crown colony. It was also a personal triumph for Sir James, fur trader, diplomat, patriot and governor of two colonies.

GOLD RUSH ON
The Fraser river gold rush in the summer of 1858 brought thousands of miners from Washington, Oregon and California. Gov. Douglas feared the newcomers would acquire control of the country, collected a mining license to exact recognition of British sovereignty.

He introduced a bill into the House of Commons to provide for creation of a new colony on the north Pacific seaboard. The name, British Columbia, was selected by Queen Victoria because of the proximity of the colony to the new province. Vancouver Island was excluded and remained a separate colony.

Eddie Halligan Whips MacDonald Easily

Wins Unanimous Decision In 10-Round Middleweight Go

By Dick Beddoes

In 10 rounds of slugging Eddie Halligan battered Rocky MacDonald into submission Friday night. And more than 2,000 fans paid to see the fighting Edmonton cop get a boxing lesson in every round except the first, which was even.

It Was Play for Halligan

Scoring an unanimous decision in the middleweight match was play for Halligan. From the second round he was in control, a dancing, chunky little Negro with a spasmoid smile on his face. The latter, after the early exchange, was never in doubt. In the sparring of the opening rounds the honors lay with Halligan, and for the rounds after the fourth it was more Halligan, until the eighth and ninth when MacDonald recovered somewhat.

Halligan played easily. With his opponent not strong on the attack, Halligan, blocking masterfully, could afford to play. In the second a blow to the button landed on Mac on his pants for a two count at the bell. And in the third a left uppercut and right swing sent Rocky to the canvas for a moment.

As a fighter Halligan did not show himself a wonder. He didn't have to. Never was he extended. MacDonald never had him in trouble one. No blow MacDonald ever landed hurt his dusky adversary. Halligan came out of the fight undamaged and the blood on his left eye came from a recent cut which MacDonald succeeded in re-opening.

MacDonald failed to lead and land. The quickness he is noted for evaporated, and while MacDonald was dead game to the end, he was not so badly punished. What he failed to bring into the battle with him were good hands which could tie up the bobbing target and tell him how to hit it. He employed his taut right hand as a shield.

But he was not badly damaged from the blows. Every day of boxing has the same kind of days in schoolyard wars.

Beginning Of The End In The Second

A wave of applause shook the stock pavilion when MacDonald entered the ring and was introduced as the western Canadian middleweight champion. The paragon of the two men would have led to a feeling of insecurity for Halligan. For Mac was all that was said of him, lithe, tall, muscular and the little carver. Negro seemed not to be. He smiled and smiled at his highly-prized opponent. Both men worked easily in the first round, Halligan hobbling and MacDonald being hit with a right hand with rightward which he threw from a knee to Mac's chest.

Halligan began to come in the second. He unravelled the Champ after all save in its significance. The fight answered the question: Is MacDonald ready for the good boys in Canada in his division?

He was not a great middleweight fighter after all save in its significance. The fight answered the question: Is MacDonald ready for the good boys in Canada in his division?

SHOPPING GUIDE

Taperettes In Stores
At Cosmetic counters

By Bea Thrifty

I've had a million and one phone calls and letters about the new "Taperette" line.

You know, that magic hair-trimming comb I mentioned about a week ago.

The few samples in city stores have all been purchased ... BUT ... MORE ARE EXPECTED ANY DAY ...

Ask for it at cosmetic counters.

For the $125 you pay for it, you can reap untold sums in hair-cutting savings for the big and little people of your house.

It actually works better when you play the hair barber game and have someone else do the trimming for you.

One of the Beau Brummels of the office here said he shaved it twice in the last one haircut out of every two.

When men's hair costs are 75c per inch and children's run from 35c to 50c ... the Taperettes saved him.

Here are a number of "tidbits" that I'm picking out of the "Taperette" "How they'll be as much help to you as they are to me."

Clipped carrots may be used to replace some of the fruit in a cake recipe ... for economy's sake.

If a layer of paraffin is placed over Christmas puddings they will be protected from moisture and the paraffin is easily removed by peeling.

Best chestnuts that you can find for roasting should never be thinned, but everyone to whom you are to sell the said.

To refresh packaged coconut that has been allowed to dry out, soak it in milk. Then use the milk to make cake or custard.

In now there is the milk to use. Place raw apples in a bowl of cold green leaves ... or even paraffin ... on a tray and use as "fruit cushions" on which to place.

WHY GROW OLD

Posture Perfection
Result of Exercises

By Josephine Lowman

It is difficult to explain good posture in print. Readers understand what I mean when I say, "Pull your shoulders in." "Straighten your back." "Look straight ahead rather than down." "Your shoulders should be relaxed." "Pull your hips under."

One of the most important parts of good posture is the straightening of the spine through the action of the neck. It is the neck that does everything but the floor on your back.

You may be fairly fit through the shoulders and yet be at fault in this one spot. The back leads to early aging of the neck and a dowager's hump, and also failure.

In order to demonstrate what I mean, take the following position. Stand erect. Bend your elbows and clasp your hands behind your neck. Do NOT lift your chin as you push back against your hands with your head. Hold while you count to ten. Relax. Again push back. Repeat about ten times. You will feel the stretch in the area between your hands and the base of your neck. This is a splendid exercise for the above mentioned fault.

It is also a good idea to rest on your back with your head and your arms at your sides. Do this same thing, pushing back against the floor with the back of your head, trying to make the stretch between your head and the base of your neck as long as possible.

Much poor posture is caused by sleeping on a big pillow. If you cut it out of your back without a pillow, use a small one.

It takes a long time to acquire a dowager's hump and it will take time and faithful practice to undo it. But it is worth the effort. Most of us accumulate at this point. Massage this, rolling the flesh between your fingers and your thumbs.

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 17 "Dowager's Hump" sent, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of the newspaper.

My husband and I have bitter arguments over this. He considers it a waste of time to exercise to please each other, even though our preferences would dictate otherwise.

I feel that it is not necessary for husbands and wives to deny themselves in their personal comfort and pleasures in order to please each other. It is a waste of time.

What is your opinion on the subject?

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Change in Diet Averts
Baby's Constipation

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Constipation is one of those ailments of which the mother is in continual fear. A missed movement and she dubs her baby "constipated." Her first thought, then, is to force a movement, which in turn makes for another missed movement and the whole pattern over again.

The nursing baby can go for two or more days and still not have a hard, constipated stool. It is well, then, to let the nursing baby establish his own rhythm of evacuation—provided the weight gain is good—and not introduce laxatives to upset it.

My husband and I have bitter arguments over this. He considers it a waste of time to exercise to please each other, even though our preferences would dictate otherwise.

I feel that it is not necessary for husbands and wives to deny themselves in their personal comfort and pleasures in order to please each other. It is a waste of time.

What is your opinion on the subject?

It is a long time to acquire a dowager's hump and it will take time and faithful practice to undo it. But it is worth the effort. Most of us accumulate at this point. Massage this, rolling the flesh between your fingers and your thumbs.

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 17 "Dowager's Hump" sent, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of the newspaper.

Santa Claus Considers 'What's Good for Children'

Christmas belongs to the children. It is their day. For them Christmas might be filled with dreams of wonderful presents—and they are the first out of bed in the morning to see what Santa has left around the tree.

Often, however, they find that old Saint Nicholas has left a toy cycle or a train that is more interesting to them than any other. But the kids are in for a new deal if a group of child-study experts have anything to say about it.

At a preview of Christmas toys the experts have come up with a list of new ideas about children's toys. When mom and pop go along to the store to buy Junior's Christmas toys this year they should forget about the traditional bicycle and "pedal wagon" which carries a wagon attachment on the rear.

He says that among other uses the wagon could tote groceries or Junior's own little sister.

Caplan and his fellow experts say a toy should be more than just a plaything. They claim that it should stimulate a child's usefulness.

For instance, they say that there should be a toy that is as useful as a bicycle. They recommend a bicycle with a basket on the handlebars and a small motor on the back.

The top-line like the new dolls which are made of sponge rubber and are wired for flexibility. They can stand and sit, bend and stretch.

The dolls are covered with felt and dressed in bright, hand-made clothes of the same material.

This new doll family also has a dog—a black Beagle.

Let's make up our story as we go along tonight.
Get out your colors for the picture and well start.
These rabbits live underground in a nice snug house with BROWN walls. The earthen floor has been tramped down so hard and is kept so clean by mother Bunny that it is now a shining GRAY.
Mother and baby Bunny are out visiting their friends the Groundhogs today. The girl has her good dress on. It is GREEN.

"I'll tell you why I like STATE EXPRESS"
"I like State Express cigarettes because they satisfy my smoking taste in every way. They are pleasantly smooth . . . but . . . not too mild. They are always fresh . . . that's why I enjoy their flavor to the fullest. They are firmly packed and do not stick to my lips. State Express cigarettes have won me over completely."

BASEBALL'S GREAT Babe Ruth loved kids as much as they loved him. He always found time to talk to them and sign autographs.

WINNER OF DRAW KNOWN NEXT WEEK

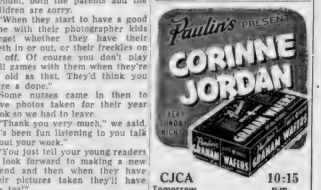

Winners in the Tawasi Draw will be notified by mail. Phone and we will tell you all about them on next Saturday's Tawasi Page. It sure would be nice if we could all win, especially when it's so close to Christmas, but since we can't the rest of us will just congratulate the winners and hope for the best next time.
You've been awfully patient waiting for your budges. The people who make them are terribly rushed but they promised me for sure you would have them next week-end.
We have some nice surprises planned for you. I can't tell you yet because everything isn't ready, but there is a special SOMETHING to look forward to. Sincerely, Aunt Ruth.

"Will you tell me what I like to take children's pictures?" we asked the photographer, "There will be lots of them jangling them taken for Christmas presents and I'll bet they're wondering what I'll be having."
"They'll make a new friends!" he said.
"Well, this man is one of Edmonton's leading photographers, and he specializes in children's pictures so we settled back to listen.
TALK ABOUT HOBBIES
"Yes," he said, "you get good pictures of children when they know you are interested in them and would like to know them better. You'd be surprised at how many things learn because they all have different hobbies, and, of course, that's usually what we talk about."
Two very little fellows came in just then and we were allowed to stay and watch. Pretty soon they were having more fun than a picnic and laughing till it hurt at a ball game he was playing with them. When it was all over they didn't want to go.
"What happens when they have their front teeth missing?" we asked.
PAINT THEM IN
"Oh, that's nothing. We just paint them in. Sometimes fathers, specially ask to have the toothless grin of their boys, but mostly we just fill in the space a little ahead of nature."
"Freckles, now, that's different. That's part of how a child really looks. We will remove them, but then, in later years when the freckles have gone on their own account, both the parents and the children are sorry."
"When they start to have a good time with their photographer kids forget whether they have their teeth in or out or their freckles on or off. Of course you don't play ball games with them when they're as old as that. They'd think you were a dope."
Some nurses came in then to have photos taken for their yearbook so we had to leave.
"Thank you very much," we said. "It's been fun listening to you talk about your work."
"You just tell your young readers to look forward to making a new friend and then when they have their pictures taken they'll have fun too!"

Nova Scotians Get Power Cuts

HALIFAX, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Power cuts affecting 200,000 persons in this area were announced last night by the Nova Scotia Light and Power Company.
C. J. Hayes, acting manager of the company, said the curtailment resulted from a developing leak in a pressure steam boiler at the commission's Halifax plant. He added the plant would have to shut down until the leak was located and repaired.
Both domestic and industrial consumers in Halifax, Dartmouth, Halifax county and the Annapolis valley feel the pinch.
Mr. Hayes said it was hoped consumers would voluntarily cut down on power usage.

Ottawa Surplus Is $533,600,000

Abbott Warns Against Assuming Increases

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—(CP)—The federal government's surplus at the end of seven months of the current fiscal year was $533,600,000, Finance Minister Abbott reported last night. The surplus for the corresponding period of last year was $540,700,000.

In announcing that the government was heading for its third successive surplus, Mr. Abbott warned that the government's budgetary surplus will continue to increase during the last few months of the fiscal year at the same rate as it has during the first seven months.

TO BE OFFSET

Mr. Abbott said: "Although further increases in the budgetary surplus are expected in the succeeding months between now and next March, these will likely be offset, at least in very large degree, by certain expenditures of substantial amounts which are ordinarily not recorded in the government's accounts until right at the end of the year."

In his last budget speech, Mr. Abbott forecast a surplus of $480,000,000 for the fiscal year. In 1947-48 the surplus was $570,000,000 and in 1946-47, when the first surplus in 17 years was completed, it was $352,800,000.

APPLIED TO DEBT

The surplus was applied against the national debt which now stands in the neighbourhood of $17,000,000,000. The surplus is in sharp contrast to the huge deficits which skyrocketed during the war years. The debt climbed to its present height of $17,000,000,000 in 1946, the year before the outbreak of the war. In 1944, the debt was $344,900,000.

Kitty Hawk Home After Long Dispute

YONKON, N.J., Nov. 20.—(AP)—The "Kitty Hawk" came home yesterday from 20 years exile in London.

The tiny Wright Brothers plane, which first carried man aloft in sustained flight 44 years ago, arrived aboard the 1,000-ton carrier Boat in company of 24 of its descendants—aircraft, now daily United States army Corsairs.

It came in three wooden crates on route to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The Kitty Hawk, originally named the "Flyer," was sent to London after the late Orville Wright became involved in a dispute with Smithsonian Institution officials as to whether the plane was the first heavier-than-air craft to carry a man aloft.

Institution officials at the time ruled that a plane built by Samuel Langley should be designated.

But when the Orville Wright was requested by Orville Wright in 1943 after Smithsonian officials reversed their original ruling and decided the Kitty Hawk should be honored as the first heavier-than-air craft to carry a man through space.

FIREMEN CALLED FOR SEX FILM

ANCHER, N.C., Nov. 20.—(AP)—They brought a sex movie in to this town Wednesday night and it took the combined efforts of the police and fire department to bring order.

The thing was entitled "Atom and Dad," and the billing contained such descriptions as "night showing the secret of sensibility."

Mayor Glenn Wilson said it was the "biggest crowd I've ever seen here" that gathered outside the local theatre.

The entrance was locked and police chief Wade Adams, who also in fire chief, ordered the fire hose to be turned into the crowd. Flats flew as some of the crowd tried to break in, but no one was injured.

Yesterday morning Wilson said he wanted to inspect the matter. He said that he planned a city ordinance outlawing sex films.

Catholic Laborite Raps Duplexis

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—(CP)—General Duplexis, president of the Canadian Confederation of Labor, yesterday termed a statement attributed to Premier Duplexis earlier this week as a "declaration of war against the labor class of Quebec province."

In a statement, he accused the premier of preparing to abrogate labor's hard-won rights at the next session of the legislature.

Duplexis was commenting on a Quebec report quoting Premier Duplexis as having told a delegation representing the Union of Municipalities of Quebec last Wednesday that he was not in favor of "arbitrary arbitration tribunals for settling disputes between municipalities and their employees."

The premier said he favored collective bargaining agreements.

DAIRY GROUP URGES BUTTER SUBSTITUTE

WINNIPEG, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Canadian consumers are nearly responsible for low butter stocks in some sections of Canada. They ate 31,000,000 pounds of butter in October—more than they've ever before consumed in one month.

W. R. St. John of Ottawa, executive secretary of the National Dairy Council, said here yesterday that heavy consumption led the council to advise the Dominion government either to import butter or a suitable substitute. Danish and New Zealand butter now is imported.

Tories Wanted GOP Win: Ilsey

HALIFAX, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Ilsey, J. L., Halifax, former minister of justice, told a Nova Scotia Liberal association convention here yesterday that the Progressive Conservative party had planned to capitulate on a Republican victory in the United States elections Nov. 2.

"If I said," he informed that even publicity was being prepared to "play up a Dixie-Demacy angle," he said, "I am sure that there was an upsurge of the rightist element all over the North American continent."

Church Protests Radio Policies

TORONTO, Nov. 20.—(CP)—The executive council of the Church of England in Canada yesterday protested what it called the failure of private and government radio stations to schedule Sunday evening religious services.

The council approved a resolution which said no church service or other religious programs were broadcast over any major radio station in central Canada after 6 p.m. Sunday night.

The resolution, which "bemoans to a matter of policy on the part of radio stations... both private and government... implies in opinion that the religious interests of the people are not adequately served at the time and the suggestion that there is no desire for such programs during these hours," it added.

Royal Family Takes Up Case of Italians

NAPLES, Italy, Nov. 20.—(Reuters)—The British Royal Family has intervened in the case of 40 Italians imprisoned on the island of Ponza off Naples, a telegram received at the palace from the ambassador of Britain in Rome.

The telegram, which "bemoans to a matter of policy on the part of radio stations... both private and government... implies in opinion that the religious interests of the people are not adequately served at the time and the suggestion that there is no desire for such programs during these hours," it added.

The mothers of the prisoners had sent a letter to Princess Elizabeth asking her to intervene on behalf of their sons who were imprisoned in British prisons during the Allied occupation of Italy.

In the letter they congratulated the Princess on the birth of a son and said: "Our husbands would be so great as yours if our sons could return home."

The countess's telegram said the Royal Family had decided to bring the case to the attention of "competent authorities with a view to obtaining the release of the prisoners."

No home is made from the 40 Italian men who were taken today from the island of Ponza. The men are held in Italian prisons, and using Christmas cards.

Judge Cold To Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Mr. Justice P. H. T. C. Chouinard threatened to ignore the month of November if something isn't done about the case of the capital's ancient court room.

He warned court officials that if he was not satisfied with the progress of the case, he would adjourn it each day until it was taken.

NEW TOWN HALL

TWENTY-FIVE grains of corn and two cracked walnuts were a reasonable price to pay for the half-gallon syrup can which the Teenie Weenies planned to convert into a town hall, but a great deal of work had to be done before the building could be occupied. First, the can had to be dragged out of the dump where the big people had thrown it. That took days of prying, pulling and Teenie Weenie sweating, even with the help of Nick, the red squirrel, and Skippy, the chipmunk.

When the can had been dragged out of the dump it had to be raised with Teenie Weenie jacks in order to get rollers under it. With the aid of the rollers, which were a number of old lead pencils, the can could be pulled along by Skippy. On several steep grades, Nick helped to pull the can and in that way the little men slowly moved the new town hall into the Teenie Weenie village.

The spot where the old hat had burned had been cleaned out and a foundation had been laid for the can. When the can was finally placed on the foundation, the little people set to work remodeling. First, the can had to be thoroughly scrubbed inside, for there was considerable syrup left in it. Eighteen catsup bottle tops of hot water were required to clean the can, and it took the Teenie Weenies half a day to do the work.

Windows and doors had to be cut through the tin, and that was a very tedious and difficult job. A porch with a roof over it was built at the front of the can. Then a hole was cut through the top for a chimney. It took the little folk almost two weeks to finish the task. But it was worth all the work and expense, for the place was absolutely fireproof and that was a great comfort to the Teenie Weenies. When the building was finished it was given two coats of paint inside and out. That not only made the place look well, but it would help to keep the building from rusting.

When the work was finished, the General figured out how much had been spent. Considering the high building costs, the Teenie Weenies thought the price of their new town hall was rather reasonable. Here are the exact figures as copied carefully from the General's notebook:

Chipmunk labor: 2 cracked walnuts and 6 hazelnuts

Red squirrel labor: 5 hickory nuts, 4 hazelnuts and 3 beechnuts.

Purchase price of building: 25 grains of corn and 2 cracked walnuts.
